Effect of a hung parliament for Vic

Some polls have suggested that a possible outcome after this state election is a hung parliament, meaning neither major party will be able to form government without the support of one or more minor parties or independents.

Do you think this would be a good thing or a bad thing for Victoria?

Effect of Melbourne population growth

Melbourne's population has just passed five million and is forecast to reach six million by 2031 and eight million by 2051. Recent Victorian governments from both sides of politics have encouraged this population growth through high levels of migration.

Do you believe these policies have affected your own quality of life?
